Title: Digging Deeper: George's Creek Library Presents Perspectives of a Coal Mining Community

The Allegany County Library System is pleased to announce an upcoming event that will provide unique insights into the multifaceted world of coal mining. Titled "Digging Deeper: Perspectives of a Coal Mining Community," this event promises to captivate audiences by delving into both the technical intricacies and personal stories associated with the mining industry.

Scheduled to take place at 5:30 p.m. on June 5 at the George's Creek Library in Lonaconing, event will feature two distinguished speakers who will shed light on different dimensions of mining. Bucky Schriver, a local historian, will share aspects of the technical side of mining, providing in-depth knowledge about mining processes, techniques, and history.

Complementing Bucky's technical exploration, Polla Horn will take the audience on a personal journey through the human side of mining. Focusing on the resilience and fortitude of women and children in mining communities, Horn will explore topics such as survival strategies, education, recreation, and other personal aspects that shaped their lives.

This event presents a unique opportunity for attendees to gain a comprehensive understanding of mining, as it combines the technical intricacies with the human stories behind the industry. Whether you have a keen interest in coal mining or are intrigued by the personal experiences of those involved, "Digging Deeper" promises to offer valuable insights and provoke thought.

"Due to the success of previous local history presentations, we were excited to partner with Bucky Schriver and Polla Horn to once again host a local interest program" said Regina Spiker, Service Leader at the George's Creek Library. "By combining the technical and personal aspects, we aim to provide a holistic perspective and engage the audience in a meaningful exploration of mining's depths."

This event is free and open to the public. Further information and updates can be found at www.alleganycountylibrary.info and the Allegany County Library System social media platforms.
